

Regal Velvet®

Anigozanthos 'Regal Velvet'

The great foliage on this plant makes it a stand out compared to any other Kangaroo Paw available.

Its dense clean foliage is much better at out competing weeds than other Paws and needs less trimming, or removal of older leaves to keep it looking good. It is also quite a compact foliage plant (to 50cm), with a taller flower compared to others in the range.

For mass planting in large landscapes, this along with Gold Velvet are probably the pick of all the range. Its flowers are also very attractive, with both red and green highlights. The flower stem generally grows to approximately 1.0 to 1.4 metres in height. In show gardens it is a good idea to remove the older flowers in late summer, but for mass planted areas this may be difficult, so the stems can be left to decay on their own.

A very functional plant

To reduce maintenance on large sites, one technique is to plant Regal Velvet behind a couple of rows of almost no maintenance plants like Tanika, or Little Jess (see Ozbreed plants). That way trimming is definitely optional.
